Title: Climate ambition vs. climate policies: An assessment of COP27 and the Spanish White Book on Tax Reform

Abstract: The seminar will discuss the main energy and climate proposals of the recent White Book on Tax Reform, commissioned by the Spanish government and part of the Resilience and Transformation Plan. Most proposals of the White Book are guided by the divergence between current Spanish commitments and actual greenhouse gas emissions. The seminar will discuss the recent developments of Spanish policies against the energy crisis, which in general are contrary to the guidelines of the White book. The presentation will provide a wider interpretation of this situation, as an example of the difficulties to attain ambitious objectives through the implementation of effective policies in the short term.
